2. Altuve-Febres, Fernán. LA MONARQUÍA SIN CORONA : OBRAS DE JOSÉ MARÍA DE PANDO (1787-1840). Lima: Fondo Editorial del Congreso del Perú, 2015. 748p., wrps. new. Paperback. ISBN: 9786124075605.

"LA MONARQUÍA SIN CORONA : OBRAS DE JOSÉ MARÍA DE PANDO (1787-1840)" is an analysis of politician, diplomat and intellectual José María del Pando (1787-1840)'s life and career. María del Pando played an integral role in the colonial-republican transition in Peru, and left various writings that reflected his unique political perspectives on Peru's relationship to Spain. As a result of his work, he was considered a liberal in Spain, but a reactionary in Peru; and a Peruvian in Spain, but a Spaniard in Peru.

Nuevo libro del jurista e historiador Fernán Altuve Febres-Lores, sobre José María del Pando (1787-1840), político, diplomático e intelectual que desempeñó un rol gravitante en la transición colonial-republicana de Perú, y dejó plasmado en diversos escritos sus singulares perspectivas de lo que debía ser la patria y que le valieron la paradoja de ser considerado liberal en España pero reaccionario en América, peruano en España y español en el Perú.

"La Independencia del Peru: ¿concedida, conseguida, concebida?" is a collection of essays that offer various perspectives on the challenges Peru faced during its process of gaining independence. The collection has two main parts: The first part offers a series of classic essays discussing the thesis of independence as posited by Heraclio Bonilla and Karen Spalding (January 1972). The second part of the book offers new insights that have emerged in recent years, by scholars who view Peru's independence as a solution in response to a political problem with the Spanish crown.

Reúne una serie de ensayos clásicos con nuevos estudios en los que se ofrecen diferentes visiones sobre este proceso crucial de nuestra historia. En esta edición, los diferentes artículos presentan diferentes miradas historiográficas a los desafíos que enfrentó la naciente república peruana. La publicación se divide en dos partes. La primera parte ofrece una serie de ensayos clásicos que discuten la tesis de la independencia concedida, debate iniciado a partir del trabajo de Heraclio Bonilla y Karen Spalding (enero de 1972). La segunda parte del libro ofrece nuevas visiones surgidas en años recientes, que ven a la independencia del Perú como una solución en respuesta a un problema político con la corona española.

"Nueva crónica y buen gobierno" is a Peruvian chronicle from approximately 1615. Its creator, indigenous Peruvian Felipe Guaman Poma de Ayala, sent the handwritten manuscript to King Philip III of Spain for two reasons: to give a historical account of the Andes from the earliest human beings to the Incas and the Spanish conquest, and to draw attention to regional problems caused by the Spanish government. The volumes chronicle ancient Andean history, the rise of the Incan empire, Spanish conquest in the 1530s, and early colonial society and government. It also describes pre-colonial religion, social order, legislation, celebrations and economic organization, as well as the functions of the different social groups.

"Del antiguo esplendor de Lambayeque" demonstrates the value of the Muga and Casa Castillo, two architectural monuments that are characteristic of the colonial and republican architecture of the nineteenth century. These buildings also summarize the social and cultural history of Lambayeque, revealing its habits and customs, many of which have been disappearing due to urban growth, economic development and the evolution of modern society.

La obra propone demostrar el valor de dos edificaciones declaradas como monumentos arquitectónicos, por evidenciar características propias de la arquitectura colonial y republicana del siglo XIX: la Casa Muga y la Casa Castillo. Estos inmuebles fueron reestructurados por la riqueza cultural que encierran, ya que resumen la historia social y cultural de esta ciudad, pues revelan los usos y costumbres, que con el tiempo y el crecimiento urbano, así como el desarrollo económico y la evolución de la sociedad, han ido desapareciendo. Se abordan también una serie de hitos históricos entrelazados con la historia local de Lambayeque, así como sus peculiaridades del pueblo lambayecano del siglo XIX.

"Obras completas XI" is a study on pre-Hispanic history on the central Peruvian coast, particularly the developed societies in the Lurín valley, which have been the focus of a series of controversies among specialists of this region. These controversies center around the role played by the Pachacamac sanctuary in the low and middle valley's social organization, and by extension, its political and economic structures. María Rostworowski's pioneering works compiled in this volume shed light on the area's development during the time, and show a unique perspective on the detailed social processes developed in this region of the Andes. Contents include: "Pachacamac y los ychsma durante los periodos tardíos en la costa central peruana", "Breve ensayo sobre el señorío de Tchma o Ychima", "Urpayhuachac y el 'símbolo del mar'", "La vida de un poblado de pescadores", "El sitio arqueológico de Concon, el valle del Chillón: derrotero etnohistórico", "Estructuras políticas y económicas de la costa central del Perú precolombino", "El curacazgo del Callao" and "Algunos mitos referentes al dios Pachacamac".

"Los incas. Obras Completas IX" is the ninth volume of essays on the Incan empire by historian and researcher Maria Rostworowski. This work examines the empire's political institutions and how they relate to ethnic entities, as well as two recurring themes: the Chanca conflict as the defining moment in which the Inca Empire achieved its pinnacle of power; and Incan rulers, especially Pachacutec, who expanded the empire's cultural and economic parameters. Rostworowski creates a conceptual framework that draws links among geopolitics and economic and cultural development.

Los ensayos reunidos en este noveno volumen de la Obra Completa de María Rostworowski abarcan sus escritos entre los años 1955 y 2000 sobre los Incas. La autora rastrea las formas como se construyen las instituciones políticas, en qué medida estas corresponden a entidades étnicas y cómo se desarrollan en el espacio. Existen dos temas recurrentes en sus ensayos: el conflicto con los chancas, como el momento definitivo en el cual se reorienta la geopolítica de la región permitiendo el surgimiento y apogeo del Tahuantinsuyu; y la misión ordenadora de los incas, en especial de Pachacutec, quien de una manera civilizadora ensayó los parámetros culturales, en particular económicos, que forman el Incario. Así, Rostworowski mantiene un marco conceptual a través de los ensayos en el que la geopolítica y el desarrollo cultural, tanto económico como ideológico, están íntimamente relacionados.

In "Pensando a la derecha" Antonio Zapata, a Peruvian professor, historian, writer and diehard leftist, takes up the challenge of thinking from a right-wing perspective. To do so, he builds off of three traditions or parties: technocracy, populism and APRA. To better understand these foundations, Zapata examines the last hundred years of national political history, asking questions such as, "what policies and ideas have governed the country?", and "why and how we did we get to our present situation?" Through this thought-provoking account, Zapata inspires readers to expand their perspective and understanding of Peru. Contents include: "EL APRA, historia de un zigzag", "El clientelismo de derecha", "La derecha intelectual y tecnocrática" and "Once tesis sobre las derechas".

"Participación, competencia y representación política" is a collection of texts on the current state of democracy in Peru, particularly focusing on the problematic aspects of the country's current political system. The various authors of this work examine the future of its contemporary democracy, exploring the theories that its natural state is crisis mode, that it will always operate below expectations, and that it is essentially an unattainable ideal. They also analyze free elections, the electoral process, the accountability of the country's leaders, political parties, public policies, voter demographics and more. Essentially, this book is both a provocation and an invitation to deepen the country's political debate and discourse in order to achieve more effective and egalitarian forms of political representation, and to create a better society and political community. This work is divided into two main parts: "Historia de los procesos y reformas electorales" and "Democracia y participación política".

"De la Amazonía su palma" studies developmental projects in the Amazon in Peru, as well as the general perception that the area's value lies in its provision of natural resources, which are exploited by large enterprises. This work also addresses the fact that there is no comprehensive strategy for these investment projects (especially hydroelectric power stations, road and waterway projects, and palm oil cultivation), leading to social and environmental problems. As such, this work aims to open new dialogue and policy debate at a national level on the feasibility of territorial management tools, as well as highlight conservation objectives that are needed to protect fragile ecosystems. Contents include: "¿Dónde estamos en gestión territorial frente a las presiones por expandir la palma aceitera?", "El cultivo de palma aceitera: del mundo hasta Alto Amazonas", "Notas conceptuales y metodológicas", "Aportes para la gestión territorial en la Amazonía: propuesta de un sistema de Información Territorial en la provincia de Alto Amazonas", "Dilemas de la expansión del cultivo de palma aceitera: un modelo de localización para palma sostenible en la provincia de Alto Amazonas" and "Balance final: la palma aceitera como modelo de desarrollo sostenible en la Amazonía peruana".

"Derechos indígenas, gobernanza ambiental y recursos en la Amazonía peruana" examines the quiet revolution that has taken place in indigenous South America in response to modern development and the unprecedented vying for resources in remote corners of the world. Institutional policies have never before appeared as green and socially inclusive, yet co-exist with an ever-deepening socio-environmental crisis. Author Peter Bille Larsen offers an anthropological analysis of this paradoxical situation, presenting an analysis of new regulatory technologies, practices and institutions that restructure contemporary resource frontiers but don't necessarily mitigate the problems at hand. Bille Larsen also examines these arrangements ethnographically in the Peruvian Amazon, particularly focusing on the Yanéscha people and their involvement in indigenous rights, conservation and protected area planning, logging and oil development. This book was originally published in English under the title, "Post-frontier resource governance : indigenous rights, extraction and conservation in the Peruvian Amazon".

In 1986, when the power structure of the post-oligarchic period was being organized, the Peruvian press coined the term "Twelve Apostles", referring to the twelve largest businessmen who were summoned by President Alan García to discuss the course the country should take. Since then it has become customary to speak of the Twelve Apostles when discussing the heads of the largest and strongest Peruvian companies. However, due to the changes that the country, the economy and the economic elite have experienced in recent decades, it is necessary to re-identify these figures and present a clearer and more accurate image of the "apostles" of the 21st century. In "Los doce apóstoles de la economía Peruana", author Francisco Durand presents a detailed analysis of the country's trajectory of economic, political and social power, and of the twelve most influential Peruvian economic power groups (PGE). Moreover, he examines how they wield their enormous wealth to influence public policy decisions and political campaigns.

"La extracción de recursos naturales y la protesta social en el Perú" presents political and cultural aspects of territory as key factors in understanding the social movements of resistance against the expansion of natural resource extraction in Peru. By analyzing three cases of famous social resistance movements against extractive activities in Tambogrande, Cerro Quilish and Bagua (all of which demanded recognition of rights to the water and land), author Moises Arce points out that the success of social mobilization against the extraction of natural resources lies in pre-existing social organizations, coalitions and communities.

Retoma la importancia de los aspectos políticos y culturales del territorio, como factores claves para entender las movilizaciones sociales de resistencia frente a la ampliación de las fronteras extractivas de recursos naturales en el Perú. El autor, mediante el análisis de tres casos subnacionales de célebre resistencia social en oposición a las actividades extractivas, tales como Tambogrande, Cerro Quilish y Bagua los cuales reclaman por tierra, agua y reconocimiento de derechos, señala que el éxito de las movilizaciones sociales de protesta contra la extracción de recursos naturales radicó en las organizaciones sociales preexistentes.

Paperback. ISBN: 9786124150494.

"Representacion politica indigena: un analisis comparativo subnacional" is an analysis of indigenous policy in Peru, as well as an in-depth look at the political representation that exists for these often marginalized groups. Through the comparative analysis of provincial units in Cusco and Madre de Dios, author Maritza Paredes demonstrates that there are variations to the extent and quality of indigenous representation in the country. Ultimately, Paredes postulates that social organizations are the fundamental basis for the construction of substantial indigenous representation.

Investigacion sobre la politica indigena en el Peru, en un contexto de baja constitucionalidad partidaria y fragmentacion politica. A traves del analisis comparado de unidades provinciales en las regiones de Cusco y Madre de Dios, la autora plantea que existen variaciones subnacionales en cuanto al grado y la calidad de la representacion indigena en el pais, a pesar del marco institucional sobre la cuota nativa y de pueblos originarios que tienen en comun todos los casos.

How did the indigenous people of the Andes feel during the Conquest and the first decades of colonization? This pioneering study by French historian Nathan Wachtel, "Sociedad e Ideología: Ensayos de antropología e historia andinas", recounts history from the perspective of the vanquished, decolonizing history itself. However, it does not simply chronicle the exploitation and abuses of the indigenous people; it also delves into how their civilization was structured and the logic that motivated them, in order to better understand the meaning of their collapse. This second edition includes an extensive prologue in which Wachtel analyzes his trajectory of study in comparison with different ethnological approaches throughout history. This work is divided into four parts: "Estructuralismo e historia: A propósito de la organización social del Cuzo", "La reciprocidad y el estado Inca: de Karl Polanyi a John V. Murra", "La desestructuración económica y social del mundo Andino" and "Pensamiento salvaje y aculturación: El espacio y el tiempo en Felipe Guamán Poma de Ayala y el Inca Garcilaso de la Vega".

"Cholas" and "pishtacos" are two characters from South American popular culture -- a sensual mixed-race woman and a horrifying white killer. In "Cholas y pishtacos: Relatos de raza y sexo en los Andes", these two figures act as vehicles for an analysis of race, sex and violence, and the intersection of all three throughout the vivid landscapes and lively cities of the Andes. Author Mary Weismantel's theory of race and sex is based on social and economic interaction, specifically estrangement, exchange and accumulation. She maps the barriers that separate white and indigenous people, males and females, and more through interviews with unlikely sources -- from potato sellers to hotel maids to tourists. Contents include: "Extrañamiento", "Ciudad de indígenas", "Ciudad de mujeres", "Intercambio", "Comercio agudo", "Relaciones mortales", "Acumulación", "Hombres blancos" and "La Mama Negra". This book was originally published in English under the title: "Cholas and pishtacos: stories of race and sex in the andes".

301. Gamboa, Jeremías. CONTARLO TODO. Lima: Penguin Random House Grupo Editorial, 2015. 505p., wrps. new. Paperback. ISBN: 9786124262609.

One morning in September 2004, in the humble room of a suburb of Lima called Santa Anita, a Peruvian boy who has had nothing in life -- except his own story -- sits down to write his first novel convinced that it is already a writer. His name is Gabriel Lisboa, and what comes out of his hands is "Contarlo todo", a raw and epic story that begins with a teenager who trembles at the thought of writing a newspaper editorial, and ends with him becoming an adult capable of writing with great urgency and a determination to tell the story of his life. Through this novel, Jeremías Gamboa provides a handbook of youth, friendship and love. He demonstrates the power of learning, finding one's identity and place in the world, and the terror of writing. But above all, he reveals the blinding, transformative and magical power of literature.

"Esta casa vacia" centers around Giovanni Perleche, a middle-aged man of forty years who lives a life ruled and compromised by debts. His days are full of the tedium of domestic routine, his work as a teacher and the occasional love affair, through which he mitigates the frustration and the emptiness that seizes him. As his life collapses into nightly episodes of family fights and an ongoing drug addiction, he realizes that he has lost everything: his son, wife, emotional tranquility, and home. At rock bottom, he discovers the value writing offers as a form of hope and reconciliation with himself and others. In this novel, author Marco García Falcón explores the misunderstandings of a deep and complex antihero.

Amid political and social tensions, Nicolas falls in love with Micaela, and they begin planning a life together. However, their lives and plans are interrupted by the arrival of Captain Lynch and his troops, marking the Chilean siege of northern Peru's coasts. Through this narrative, author Diego Randich Tejada explores the bloody war that left many unhealed wounds.

Expone la vida de Nicolás, un joven limeño que se cría en Chiclayo durante los años de la Revolución de Balta para luego conocer a Micaela, la niña que le robara su corazón, y con la cuál planeará una vida. Esta historia de amor se verá violentada por la llegada del Capitán Lynch y sus tropas durante el asedio chileno a las costas del norte peruano durante la Guerra del Pacífico. El apasionante relato conllevará una revisión de la cruenta guerra de 1879 que azotó al Perú y de las cuales muchas heridas aún siguen sin cicatrizar.

Paula Yanez, "La Papaya" is one of the most recognized political advisors in the country. She's bold, intelligent and has a broad perspective of society's fragmentation. Her childhood wasn't easy, however, and neither was her most recent past: She just ended an affair with one of her students, and despite her professional success, she lives in a stormy inner world. As she moves through the breakup and takes refuge in her work, Paula receives a proposal. Esperanza, the wife of the current president has been launched as a candidate in the next elections and calls on her expertise. At the same time, she discovers her ex-lover started a relationship with another presidential candidate. The two connections deeply conflict Paula. Through the narrative of "República de la papaya", author Gustavo Rodriguez tells the story of her bloody battles: one political, the other personal.

Rodriguez is also the author of "La Risa de tu Madre" and "La Semana Tiene Siete Mujeres".

"La justicia en la región andina" is a collection of ten essays on the justice and rights of people in five countries throughout the Andes region: Bolivia, Colombia, Chile, Ecuador and Peru. The essays specifically examine the laws pertaining to human rights and their application, as well as their social impact in the region.

Este volumen reúne diez trabajos acerca de la justicia en cinco países de la región andina, desde determinada manera de "ver" el derecho y de analizarlo. Se renuncia a examinar el derecho como ideas e incluso solamente como textos legales para analizarlo en cuanto fenómeno actuante en la realidad. Se reemplaza el estudio de la ley por el examen de su vigencia y aplicación, así como los resultados sociales que contribuye a producir.

"Perú hoy: La divina tragedia" is a collection of essays designed to stimulate debate and an exchange of ideas on relevant issues in Peru. The work is divided into three main parts: The first part relates to politics and governance and provides an overview of Peru's presidential administration, specifically addressing issues such as the collapse of the political party system, the democratization of political processes in Latin America, and the fight against corruption. The second part centers around society and democracy, analyzing the management of social conflicts, new social movements in Lima, and an approach to health policy in the Junin region. The last part analyzes the economy and resource management strategies, particularly examining the economic crisis, its impact on regional economies, and the issues of extractive industries within this context. This comprehensive collection concludes with a reflection on climate change.

Ofrece catorce ensayos con miras a impulsar el debate y el intercambio de ideas. Los ensayos que lo componen se organizan en tres grandes secciones. La primera de ellas, dedicada a la política y la gobernabilidad, ofrece una visión panorámica de la gestión presidencial, abordando temas como el colapso del sistema de partidos políticos, una reflexión sobre la izquierda y sus posiciones, los procesos de democratización en América Latina, y la lucha contra la corrupción y sus múltiples aristas. La segunda sección organiza distintos ensayos sobre sociedad y democracia, analizando la gestión de conflictos sociales, los nuevos actores sociales de los movimientos en Lima, una visión de la problemática del VRAEM y, finalmente, un acercamiento a la política de salud en la región Junín. La última sección aborda temas propios de la economía y la gestión de recursos, en la que se desarrollan sendos ensayos acerca del fin del superciclo económico, la crisis económica instalada, los efectos de ésta en las economías regionales y el tema de las industrias extractivas en este contexto, finalizando con una reflexión respecto al cambio climático enfocado en una nueva política del sentido común.

481. Zapata, Antonio. PENSANDO A LA DERECHA. Lima: Editorial Planeta, 2016. 199p., bibl., wrps. new. Paperback. ISBN: 9786123190637.

In "Pensando a la derecha" Antonio Zapata, a Peruvian professor, historian, writer and diehard leftist, takes up the challenge of thinking from a right-wing perspective. To do so, he builds off of three traditions or parties: technocracy, populism and APRA. To better understand these foundations, Zapata examines the last hundred years of national political history, asking questions such as, "what policies and ideas have governed the country?", and "why and how we did we get to our present situation?" Through this thought-provoking account, Zapata inspires readers to expand their perspective and understanding of Peru. Contents include: "EL APRA, historia de un zigzag", "El clientelismo de derecha", "La derecha intelectual y tecnocrática" and "Once tesis sobre las derechas".
